Dear Delegates of the ISMS Conference!

On behalf of the International Society of Military Sciences (ISMS) and the War Studies University in Warsaw, I am delighted to welcome you to Warsaw. The ISMS Conference 2018 will be an extraordinary event since it coincides with the 10th anniversary of the establishment of ISMS. Therefore, the conference will provide both our traditional scientific debate and the festive anniversary celebration.

Military sciences are understood to be interdisciplinary, embracing natural, mathematical, social sciences and humanities. The aim of the conference is to debate a common body of knowledge for the military profession, and to serve as a support work for shaping military sciences. The concept of military sciences, although known, is still not well researched and defined.

Military science isn't just about technology, techniques and procedures, because all conflicts are fundamentally about people. Therefore, humanities and social sciences are fundamental to "military sciences". The military is not separate from society, and society's expectation is that military leaders will understand how to achieve socially useful goals, even if military leaders think their business is to win wars. What is more, security education is widening and deepening around the world. So, we may have an unprecedented opportunity to build a transnational profession of arms that seeks to manage and prevent violence and develop new solutions for common security.

Therefore, conference discussions will focus on the search for answers to such questions as: what should be the balance of our efforts in the military profession, between transforming military science to serve prevention and management, and maximizing capacity for winning wars? And what do defence universities have to do to fulfill their responsibilities to society and the international community as custodians of the military sciences?

We will look for contributions to the discussion from members of each of the ISMS institutions and working groups. In addition, we invite everyone who is willing to debate and present their research. We hope that this will contribute to a better understanding of the essence and content of military sciences.

President of the ISMS 2018

Professor Ryszard Szpyra
